VOL. 14, NUMBER 108 MONESSEN, PA, MONDAY, OCTOBER 18 1915 SIX CENTS THE WEEK

The fall season is here. This country has arranged to loan $500,000,000 to Great Britain and France. Are you still croaking hard times? Maybe a little judgment and business push would help you.

REPUBLICAN CLUB RE-ORGANIZED

Looking To The National Contest Local Republicans Will Be Asked To Get In Line And Demonstrate Their Faith In The Principles Of Protection.

The Young Men's Republican Club of Monessen has re-organized and will take an active part in the coming campaign in the interest of the entire Republican ticket. The club now has a membership of nearly 200 and the membership committee is making a canvas of the town this week, securing additional names and it is fully expected that membership enrollment will reach the 500 mark.

Every young man in the city may join this organization, whose sole purpose is to further the interests of the Republican party. The club was organized in 1912 during the Presidential campaign, and at the big Republican rally in Charleroi had 100 men in line with red, white and blue umbrellas, and headed by the Italian band of this city. The officers of the organization are Dr. T. B. Herron, President; John Lermann, Vice President; Frank G. Lane, secretary, and C. F. Mentzer, Treasurer.

Owing to the misleading reports that have been circulated over the county, principally by the Democratic nominees, to the effect that local Republicans would bolt the ticket this fall, it was decided that the club should re-organize and begin an active campaign to prove these reports false, and assist in keeping the Republican party intact.

It is their intention of holding a rally or reception here the evening of Thursday, Oct. 28, at which time all the Republican candidates will be invited here to meet the voters. There will be no parade, but the Louhi band will furnish music during the evening. Various committees have been appointed and an active advertising campaign will be launched in the interests of the Republican party and everything possible will be accomplished to further its interests.

Want To Be Citizens

A number of foreigners, perhaps a score, were in the office of the Prothonotary at Greensburg last week, eager to declare their intentions in getting under the folds of "Old Glory" at the right time. The men, of course, proclaimed that they were willing to break away from princes and potentates in Europe and settle down to a pleasant life among the hills of Pennsylvania. The men were mostly Italians and Austrians.

Serious Accidents

Two serious automobile accidents occurred Sunday morning on the National pike near Centerville, Pa. Frank Wright, aged 52 years and his brother, Charles Wright, aged 26, were driving from Brownsville to Centerville about 9:30 o'clock when their machine skidded and crashed into a coal shed. The machine continued on its wild flight and ran into the cottage of John Hines where it turned over.

Frank Wright suffered a fractured skull, broken right arm, laceration of the legs and probably internal injuries. Charles Wright was internally injured when he was thrown against the steering wheel of the machine. Both men are in the Uniontown hospital.

About a half hour later at the same curve, a horse and buggy driven by William Britton, aged 45, of West Brownsville, Pa., who was accompanied by his daughter, Hila, aged 10, was struck by an automobile driven by A. D. Conway of Coal Center, Pa. Mr. Britton was internally injured and the girl severely cut and bruised about the head and body. The buggy was demolished. They were taken home.

Defeat Jeannette

The local High school football team traveled to Jeannette Saturday and defeated the heavy team representing that school by a score of 33 to 6. It was the third straight victory of the season for the locals. Sixteen automobiles loaded with loyal rooters accompanied the team to the Glass City. A full account of the game will appear in tomorrow's issue of the Independent.

Meetings Interesting

The Rev. Dr. Max Wertheimer, the converted Jewish Rabbi preached three times yesterday at the Baptist church In the morning his theme was "The Three Appearings of our Lord." The discourse was one of the best he has given yet and left a deep impression upon all the audience. In the afternoon he spoke on "Spiritualism." The lecture was scholarly and interesting as the doctor unraveled some of the tricks and methods resorted to by mediums to convince people that they really had communion with the dead. The rise and progress of spiritualism as indicated in the Bible were also dealt with and God's stern judgment against participation therein. Like Russelism it's clearly of the devil and Satanic agency and its adherents are largely composed of people very easily led. All these "isms" are proof and fulfillment of prophesy and of what might be expected in the last days. The most stubborn people to convince that they are wrong are these very people.

In the evening the subject was "The Unavoidable Question." The sermon was a heart searching message and all felt the power and presence of God.

The meetings will be continued all this week. To all the people of Monessen we make a special appeal to come and hear this converted Jewish rabbi. He has a wonderful experience, a wonderful knowledge of the Bible regarding prophecy and dispensational truths. We invite Jews and Gentiles to come. Don't be prejudiced and bigoted. Come and hear for yourself.

Injured In Fall

William Kammerrer, a paper hanger employed by Herbert Shambaugh was seriously injured Saturday afternoon at 42 Braddock avenue. He was at work on a scaffold over a stairway, when a support broke loose and he was thrown down the stairway for some distance. A physician was called and he was removed to his home where it was discovered he was suffering from a badly injured leg. The injury was of such a nature that an X-ray examination will be necessary to locate the trouble.

Felt Earthquake

Word has been received here that Mr. and Mrs. John Allen of this city who are visiting friends in California and attending the expositions, had an unusual experience on October 8 when they were awakened from their sleep by an earthquake. There were three quakes, the first beginning with a sudden jolt, according to observers, with a sound like an explosion. Rumbling sounds were heard during the movement of the earth. The other two were slight and not perceptible to human beings.

The local people were rather frightened when the earth beneath them began to shake, but the people residing there seemed to pay little attention to the disturbance, and after things became normal, set about arranging pictures on the wall that were knocked out of place by the earthquake. Both Mr and Mrs. Allen are loud in their praise of the California climate and are enjoying their trip, but state they will be glad to get back to good old Pennsylvania.

Brother Dead

J H. Hoffman, aged 49 years, a life long resident of Scenery Hill, died Friday after a lingering illness of about four years. Mr. Huffman was well known throughout Washington county. He was born near Scenery Hill on December 21, 1886 and there he spent his entire life. He was the son of the late Joseph and Malinda Hoffman.

Mr Huffman is survived by the following children: Frank, Nellie and Laura at home, and Bessie, wife of Leslie Crumrine of Scenery Hill. He also has the following brothers and sisters surviving. T. L. Huffman Washington; Mrs. John Frost, Monongahela; Mrs. A. T. Scott, Monessen. The funeral services were held from the late home Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, with interment in the Pigeon Creek Baptist church cemetery.

To Meet Voters

—John E. Shields, Republican nominee for sheriff, will be in Monessen Thursday to meet as many of the local voters as possible. While Mr. Shields carried Monessen by a nice margin and has hosts of friends here, he is anxious to come in contact with as many of our people as possible in an effort to renew his strength for the election to be held Nov. 2nd.

Police Court News

The effects of "spirits" were plainly visible in police court this morning. Hoboes, bums and common drunks practically took possession of Burges Dunlap's docket. Two out of the number go to Greensburg to board for thirty days.

Bert Mack has been on one of his periodical sprees for several weeks and has given the burgess no little annoyance. Bert refuses to work on the streets on account of it being too humiliating, but he has no temerity when he goes along the thoroughfares beastly drunk. Burgess Dunlap in sentencing him, offered the suggestion that a little shame at the proper time might help considerably.

Joe Price who claims he lives in Fayette City, was begging on the streets in a drunken condition. He was passing himself off as a cripple. He had one arm under his coat and when the police caught him and investigated, they found him using this as a ruse to get money. He was sentenced to five days to street labor and was glad to get off at that.

John Manning, a pal, was sentenced to five days to street labor for being drunk and begging. He said he was crippled and couldn't work so he goes up for thirty days. He and Bert left on the 11:15 train.

Steve Bokochen struck a fellow countryman on the head at a christening. He said he was celebrating and didn't remember what he was doing. He paid five and costs.

Joe Tinko, Mike Hublo and Dennis Delaney went to the shooting gallery on Donner and shot a few and refused to pay. They had been shooting themselves full of red eye from a bottle and were rather fresh. The proprietor made a complaint and all three were arrested. They were fined each $1.00 and costs which they paid.

John Wells was on his way to his brothers' home in Fayette City and stopped off here long enough to get drunk. He was found by Officer Stull on the railroad tracks and taken to the bastile. He was discharged and told to beat it out of town at once.

Sloan Appointed

Tom P. Sloan of North Charleroi, was the only member of the old Pennsylvania and Lake Erie Ship Canal commisison to be re-appointed when the names of appointees were announced by Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh at Harrisburg, Friday. Other members of the board named were William H. Stevenson, of Pittsburg, chairman of the board, W. U. Follansbee of Pittsburgh, John E. Shaw of Pittsburgh, David Jameson of New Castle, H. C. Ogden of Wheeling, W. Va. and A. E. Adams of Youngstown, O.

Two Men Knocked Senseless By Automobile

While rounding the turn at the corner of Ninth street and Knox Saturday night in his touring car, Dan Leigheber had the misfortune to strike two men, the machine passing over the one man's body, while the other was hit by the wheel and knocked down. In his attempt to keep from striking the men. Mr. Leigheber turned the machine from its course and the automobile was sent into a telephone pole and badly damaged.

The accident happened shortly before 10 o'clock and was unavoidable as in making the sharp turn, the lights of the machine were thrown up the hill and the automobile was almost upon the men who were walking in the center of the road before noticed by the driver.

Both men were picked up by Mr. Leigheber and taken to the Monessen-Charleroi hospital, where it was discovered that their injuries were not serious and they were suffering more from the shock than personal injuries.

The injured men gave their names as Charles Wate, aged 32 of 427 Clarendon avenue and Frank Pazi, aged 49 of 415 Clarendon avenue. At the hospital this morning their condition was reported as very favorable as they were suffering only from lacerations of the skull and arm, and it is expected that they will be discharged from the institution within a few days.

Union Services

At a meeting of the Ministerial association of Monessen this morning arrangements were made for the annual union Thanksgiving services to be held Thursday, November 25. Rev. J. B. Swain of the First Christian church was selected as the pastor to deliver the sermon, and the services will be held in the United Brethren church. The association adopted the rotary system of naming the place and preacher for these services. Rev. Wilson, pastor of the United Brethren church will have charge of the music for the occasion which will be given by a union choir. The usual collection will be taken up for benevolent purposes. The services will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning and the public is invited.

A Great Battle Won

Twenty-eight years ago, John L. Sullivan, champion of the world, was presented with a diamond belt by his admiring friends. It has 350 cut diamonds and 14 pounds of gold.

John L. was a mighty man and he sighed for more worlds to conquer. Like Alexander, he failed to find them, so the redoubtable champion started out to drown his woe in the brimming bowl. He succeeded so well that in 1892 Corbett knocked him out and the famous diamond belt went to the pawnbrokers.

For many years John continued to tread the downward path. A few years ago the old fellow was almost an object of charity. Then, all of a sudden, he bucked up. He renounced his allegiance to King Alcohol and began his arduous task of "coming back." A stout heart old John still had, though his magnificient physique was badly damaged. He kept on coming—and came. Last week he redeemed his diamond belt after these many years, by payment of $5,300 cash

John L. Sullivan has always had a warm place in sporting America's heart, for he "fought fair and clean" and that means a lot to Americans. He has just won his greatest battle. We may forget that he was a prize fighter in this evidence that he is very much a man.

War's Death Toll

Did you ever stop to think what war has done to this wonderful, highly civilized little world of ours during the comparatively brief span of its existence since the death of the great apostle of peace? Do you know how great a portion of that period has been occupied by man in slaying his fellows and to what extent he has succeeded?

All the fervid utterances of the inspired orators; all the arguments of the all-powerful press for universal and lasting peace, cannot bring home the awful destructiveness of mad war like the following figures·

In all the 1915 years of the Christian era there have been but 240 without war. In 1675 of these years, war has raged a part or all the time. The population of the globe in 1915 was 1,675,000,000. These wars have cost the lives of over seven billion men, or four times the present population of the whole world.

What might this world have been today had these lives not been sacrificed and had the millions of dollars and the wasted energy been expended in advancing science, literature and art; promoting peace and happiness. If you pause to reflect, you will find a powerful sermon in the few figures.

It will doubtless surprise most Americans to learn that out of the small total of 4,121 graduates during the first century of the existence of the Military academy, from 1802 to 1902, 2,731 entered civil life at some period of their career —National Magazine.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE BROKEN COIN

A Story of Mystery and Adventure

By EMERSON HOUGH

From the Scenario by GRACE CUNARD

COPYRIGHT, 1915, BY WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

Novelized From the Motion Picture Drama of the Same Name. Produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

that must be our governing power hereafter."

"What is it, then?" at length exclaimed the prime minister. "Has there been a mistake—you say Michael here is not our king—who then is our king?"

"Your excellency," said Count Frederick slowly, as he turned toward him, "yourself, these noblemen of Gretzhoffen, the council of ministers, the parliament of the realm—all these shall at length perhaps bear out my statement which I make now. I, myself—Frederick—am the king!"

At these words they made no answer.

"Listen, gentlemen," said he, gently, at last. "Great things have happened to us in our realm. We shall this day save our kingdom. As I believe, I am your king. I accept that station solemnly, and here I have the proof—it may not be doubted that ultimately its substantiation will be complete—by the parliament, by the people themselves—by all our courts—by your voice unanimous, as I doubt not, you noblemen of this kingdom.

"Shall I then read?"

He turned from one to another and the lips of none spoke audibly the consent which their eyes gave him. He read:

"In the name of God, Amen! I, Michael of Gretzhoffen, by the grace of God, king, leave this script with the treasures of the kingdom which I have concealed herewith beneath the floor of the torture chamber. With them I place the secret governing the ownership of the treasures of this kingdom. That secret is known only to myself and my bodyguard, who has been a faithful man—Boris Rolean.

"For now these many months I have been cognizant of dangers at the hands of my own foster brother Stanislaw. Should he be successful in what I conceive to be his plans, my life may forfeit, but not the treasures themselves.

"It was my pleasure to have made a medal or a coin which should be the token of this secret. When my bodyguard, Boris Roleau, a faithful man, with myself planned the burial of these treasures, I gave him the indenture, the half of a certain coin or medal which I caused to be made and inscribed, as record of the hiding place of that which we were about to conceal. Upon the face of that medal or coin this inscription was written: 'Sub pavimenti—angule vergentis—cruciati camerae—reperietur—thesarus—Regis Graetisjovensis.'

"So shall be preserved the secret of the hiding place of that which is the people's. Somewhere there shall exist, even though I shall die, this record. Half of it I have given into the charge of the man whom I have known to be faithful. At my death he is to take both halves and guard them well.

"Should I be slain, as well may be in these troublous and treacherous times in which I live, my wish and command is that my son be known as Michael the Second, and that he shall take from me the rule of this kingdom in his day, and the administration of these properties of the kingdom.

"It is my wish and command, my hope and my prayer, that he shall govern wisely with justice to all, firmly and with wisdom.

"There may be a long regency before my son shall reach the age of maturity. There is another, older than himself, the son of my foster brother—not of royal blood, but the bastard of a serving woman—Frederick, he is called. It may be within the purpose of my foster brother that that boy shall be brought up as the king, in case I, myself, should fall. Let that never happen! He is of no royal blood. He is not fit to rule. He is not your king. But signed hereunto is the name and the seal unmistakable, done in my blood and his, of your king, Michael the First, and of your future king, Michael the Second, my son. He is as yet too young fully to know the gravity of these presents. But by this sign you shall know your ruler, shall these presents come to you, well beloved.

"In the name of God, amen! Michael, Rex."

"Below this signature of Michael the Good," said the measured voice of Count Frederick, "there is another signature—'Michael the Second, Rex.' Gentlemen, there are two signatures to these scrips, and there are two seals."

A sigh of wonder, almost of consternation, came from those assembled.

"I recall now, as I see this page," said he, "this writing of the king, my father—you hear me, gentlemen—my father!

"I recall that I saw him place beneath the great seal that other seal—done in his own blood. I saw him draw the blood from his own arm and put his thumb in it, and place it here, thus sealing this document with the unmistakable seal—the one alone which cannot show a mistaken identity.

"And here, gentlemen, beneath that other line of signature, which you have heard and seen, there is another, a smaller, a very small seal of a similar sort! It is the print of a human thumb—the thumb of a boy, of a baby—a baby then, a man now—who recalls that scene vaguely. And here is the proof. Gentlemen, I recall now, it was my father made this mark; but it was his great hands which took my little one and dipped my thumb in the blood which he drew from my arm, and set it here below that name which he has written, 'Michael the Second.'

"Gentlemen, who then is your king?"

Even yet they could not grasp the full significance of what they heard, and again the voice of Count Frederick resumed:

"Gentlemen, you know the history of this kingdom as well as I. You know the long regency following the Gretzhoffen war. You know why that regency was established. Rumor was that King Michael died like a king, in his own bed. The truth was otherwise. He was murdered here in the vault by the men of his own foster brother.

"If that be true—and as God is my witness, I believe it to be true—then we well may guess which boy was brought up under the regent to take the place of a king. That was not myself—others, relatives of mine, reared me, as you know, until I am what you know. And yonder man—this drunken waster—not even the son of lawful wedlock, never the son of a queen—that man, he was the one accepted as your king! Treason, you say—why, there was treason to every human being who lived on Gretzhoffen soil, when that pretender took the throne!

"Gentlemen," said he, "you have my proof. I submit my case to you and the parliament. I submit myself to the law. As for that law, if it is given me to reign, always shall I support it, and always shall it be my ambition to give to the people that liberty, that justice which I myself have learned to love."

Still the silence, the tense electric silence which thus far had held them all. They stood thus for one moment. Then as with one common impulse—as though the same thought had caught them at the same instant, each of these men—idlers and wasters, or men of purpose and of principle, raised his hand. There rose in unison the old cry:

"LONG LIVE THE KING."

CHAPTER LIX.

Katharine.

Two were alone once more, two whom fate had so strangely cast together in such scenes.

He turned toward her now gravely and held out his hands. She placed hers in his, trembling.

"Was it true?" she whispered. "Did they indeed and indeed—did they call you—the king? Oh, how can I be happy at that. Now, I must go back—I must leave you!"

"You shall never go!" said the quiet voice of the man who confronted her. "You shall never leave me now."

"But how? You are the king? It has been confirmed. The scripts were true—what we thought was true."

"I am the king! Yes, but how shall I rule alone? You shall sit beside me, for 'tis you have taught me how a king should rule. Liberty and justice'—those words were strangers to my ears until you spoke them. Think you I could go on in this business now, this solemn undertaking which I must assume, and miss your counsel in the future? You shall be as much queen as I am king in establishing those principles in this kingdom."

"But I cannot! I am an unknown woman. I am of no birth. I am not your—"

Again he laid his fingers upon her lips lightly.

"Cease!" said he; "do not say that word. Michael, himself, my father, perhaps was of no lofty lineage so far as traced kings could be named. He himself came from where he grew—he seized the reins of power—and he gave the people such liberty and justice as then was possible. Am I better than he? Was he better than you—am I? Say no more, think no more that word."

Again he held out to her his hands, and now, in spite of all she could do, she could not withhold her own—could not withdraw them, so firmly clasped were they now. Trembling, weeping, she looked up into his eyes.

"It is all clear," said he to her at length. "It was Grahame, my unfaithful bodyguard, who had the knowledge of these things, and who betrayed us by that knowledge. He got the coins from Boris Rolean. I accord him but one item of thanks—it was through his treachery that I lost the coin at the time that I was in your country, on the errand of the Gretzhoffen loan. He stole that coin. He must have lost or pawned half of it, or sold it. At least, that is how you found it. So I thank him, for so much as that.

"As for Rolean—the son of that faithful servant of my father—he shall be honored by us both, because he has given loyalty. I myself have grieved that once I was cruel to him—that I struck him, even—after the old fashion of our rulers here. Not again shall that occur. Roleau, your friend, my servant—he shall be captain of the Imperial Guard. I have told him so much as that.

He led her gently to the great throne of Gretzhoffen, which stood before them now. They bowed before it.

"I give you my faith, Katherine," said he, simply. "Do you love me?"

"I do," said she, so low he could scarce catch the words.

L'ENVOI.

Under the sea there sped from the little kingdom of Gretzhoffen to the great republic of America a message carried in the electric spark which united the world. It was directed to the editor of the Daily Star in Kitty Gray's own city, and it was enough to give even Billy Cutler, city editor, pause for at least a moment.

"Well, good Lord!" said he, "who'll I put on the society page? Boys, the flowers were a total loss—and so am I! Here is an alias and an alibi! Listen!" He read from the little yellow bit of paper which he held:

"'Great story, but cannot return to America inside six months as promised. I have lost my wager, but have gained a husband and a home. Katharine, Regina Graetisjovensis.'"

WOMAN WEAK, RUN DOWN

Finds Health in a Simple Tonic

People in Monessen will begin to believe us when we say our delicious Vinol is a wonderful tonic and strength creator.

Here is another case where it has proved its wonderful power to overcome weak, run-down, nervous, anemic conditions.

"I was run-down, nervous and could not do my work without being entirely exhausted, and would often faint without any apparent cause. The doctor said I was anaemic but failed to help me. My husband brought home a bottle of Vinol and I began to improve after taking one bottle, and after taking four bottles it has built me up so that I can do all my household work without help. I recommended Vinol to a neighbor who says her doctor approves of it and said 'Vinol is a wondrefully good Tonic.'" Mrs. Bessie Hering, West Philadelphia, Pa.

We recommend Vinol to our customers as the greatest strength creator we know—due to the extractive medicinal elements of fresh cod livers without oil, combined with peptonate of iron and beef peptone, all dissolved in a pure medicinal wine.—Hirsch Drug Co.

WEDNESDAY —The wonderful feature "The Woman Who Lied" in four parts, featuring Mary Fuller. "The Disappearing Helmets," one of "The Romance of Elaine' episodes with Pearl White, Lionel Barrymore and the Mysterious Mr. X. (Notice, Wednesday, Oct. 27 will be the last episode of "The Romance of Elaine" and her Triumph and the disclosure of the Mysterious Mr. X. This will also be the first episode of "The Neal of the Navy" one of the most wonderful serials ever on the market. You know what Pathe series are, "The Exploits of Elaine," "New Exploits of Elaine" and "Romance of Elaine." Now I know and guarantee that "Neal of the Navy" will surpass every one in every way. Watch it.) Also one of Charley Chaplin comedies for Wednesday.

THURSDAY—The $50,000 Jewel Theft," in two reels, featuring Murdock McQuarrie and Edna Payne. My opinion is that MacQuarrie is one of the most wonderful dramatists ever in the moving picture world. There are few equal to him. "An Innocent Villian," a Joker comedy with Max Asher and Gale Henry, and the Broadway Universal feature "Under Southern Skies" in five reels, featuring Mary Fuller. This feature has set all exhibitors wild who were fortunate enought to get it in their program.

FRIDAY—Two of the finest comedies—"Eddie's Little Love Affair," a Nestor comedy with E. Lyons and one of L KO's comedies "A Mortgage on His Daughter" with Hank Mann and Peggy Pearce. Also one of Metro's features, the kind that crowds our doors all evening. B. A. Rolfe offers the two distinguished stars Jane Grey and Lionel Barrymore (the same star who is featured in "The Romance of Elaine") in "The Flaming Sword." in five acts and 210 scenes.

SATURDAY—"Queen of Jungle Land," in three reels of the kind that makes our audiences applaud wildly, featuring Edythe Sterling and Wellington Playter. Animated weekly. Pathe comedy with Heinie and Louie and the dearest and most friendly picture in our theatre. The 22nd episode of "The Diamond From the Sky" in two reels.

SPECIAL PROGRAM

TUESDAY—"The Deficit or Silent Battle," with Hobart Henley and Agnes Vernon. Directed by Leon Kent. Vigorous young manhood never made a stronger appeal than in this cleverly written and realistically staged and acted drama which features that virile young actor, Hobart Henley. The continuity proves the excellence of the directing, and the story is swiftly unfolded in a way that holds the interest throughout. Hobart Henley as "Wild Bill" Lovett, the scapegrace son of an Eastern millionaire, is disinherited and leaves home to make a man of himself. In the hands of the average posing leading man, the story would be ordinary only, but the athletic Henley riding the bumpers of a freight train; sawing wood for his breakfast; engaging in a free-for-all fight with a bunch of bullies, and his silent battle with his craving for drink gives us scene after scene with the punch that thrills and satisfies. A splendid picture and one that will stand for a lot of boosting.

WEDNESDAY—Mary Fuller in "The Woman Who Lied." Direction of Lucius Henderson. Lovers of Mary Fuller and they number millions, will see that many-sided and most charming actress in an entirely new character as Mary Martel, in the strong play, "The Woman Who Lied." As an actress with more self indulgence than character, Miss Fuller gives a portrayal that will astound those who hitherto have seen her only in "sweet" parts. Her strength in the big emotional scenes with which the play abounds, mark her work as far above the ordinary. To shield a lover Miss Fuller is guilty of the conviction of an innocent man, and her work in this and in the climax marks a wonderful advance in her more serious work. This is a play that will delight all who care for a meaty plot with strong emotional acting and it will go big any and everywhere.

THURSDAY—The Universal presents the beloved idol of the screen, Mary Fuller in that beautiful drama of love and romance in the ante-bellum days of the south, "Under Southern Skies," filmed in five wonderful acts. A brillian photo play, acted by a brilliant company in and around Savannah, Georgia. Replete with the charming atmosphere of the sunny South in the period of 1860. A play for everybody, sweet, wholesome, refreshing.

FRIDAY—Metro Pictures corporation presents the two distinguished stars, Jane Grey and Lionel Barrymore in "The Flaming Sword." The story: Steve, a young college chap who has been unfortunate in his business career, after a life of dissipation, concludes that life is not worth the living and contemplates suicide. Among his associates is a girl named Maisie with whom Steve's name has been coupled by his intimates. Steve gives a banquet and announces that he is a bankrupt and that his friends are looking upon him for the last time. After the affair Steve goes to his apartments, puts his affairs in order and slowly walks to the water front where he hires a small boat, and the last seen of him is his boat, sail set, leaving the inlet for the open sea. Maisie, realizing that Steve has intentions of injuring himself, attempts to follow, but is too late. Steve drifts out to sea and after days of misery is washed up on the beach of a small island where he is found by a girl named Meera who lives there with her father and several servants. Then the real picture starts at the acquaintance with Meera's father.

SATURDAY—"The Queen of Jungle Land" with Edythe Sterling, Wellington Playter and Rex de Rosselli. The work of the animals at Universal City Zoo, under capable direction, is proving that an animal picture can be something more than a faked jungle scene, caged animals and a plot in which the animals play both unwilling and unnecessary parts. To see Edythe Sterling stroking the head of a full grown leopard or making a pet of the biggest lion in the zoo, is a thrilling sight—one rarely found in the usual so-called pictures. Miss Sterling's work with animals is a new experience to her, but her fearlessness as shown in this strong picture leads to the belief that she has found a new outlet for her capable activities. This picture should go big with any audience because there is a plot with a punch, a good climax and the animal feature is a necessary part of the whole.

Candidates Victims

It has developed at a meeting of members of the Westmoreland County Editorial association at the court house on Friday afternoon, that some of the candidates figuring in the recent primary election have been badly taken in during the canvass of the county by what was pronounced "fake advertising" schemes, introduced by out of county persons. Some of the candidates, it was shown, were loaded down with "literature" that proved to be of no account, thus causing expense to the candidates that more experienced persons would have escaped. It was the judgment of the Westmoreland county editors that the candidates would have profited more had they ignored the out-of-county person and confined their advertising to legitimate newspapers of the county.

SENDING SICK CHILDREN TO SCHOOL

A day spent in school by a half sick child may result in a week's serious illness. If, as so often happens, the slight indisposition proves to be the beginning of some communicable disease, the result is that the other children in the school are exposed and those who are susceptible will follow in turn.

School authorities are naturally anxious to secure regularity of attendance on the part of the scholars, and many parents feel that they are simply doing their duty in forcing children to go to school who complain of not feeling well. It is much better for a child to lose an occasional day's schooling than to risk bringing on an illness and exposing others.

Children's recuperative powers, generally speaking, are superior to those of older people. Proper rest and care will often ward off serious illness, but this requires care and insight on the part of the parents as the children themselves are not apt to call attention to their condition until they become seriously ill.

Loss of appetite, feverishnes, lassitude, discoloration of the eyes, are all indications which should be watched as symptoms of indisposition.

The work which children lose in the schools they can make up far more readily than what they lose in health. Satisfactory mental progress cannot be made unless health is first considered, and school authorities should realize that the total amount of time lost is far greater owing to the added possibility of spreading communicable disease when helf sick children are permitted in school.

When children are ill, their playmates should not be permitted to see them until it is absolutely certain that they are not suffering from some comunicable disease. Colds are communicable. Parents should see that their children do not visit other youngsters who are ill and infants should never be taken into houses where there is danger of their contracting illness from children who are not well.

The man who tries to build up a business by destroying that of another will never get very far in the world. Help your fellow man in the quiet battle of life.

It Had a Farreaching Effect.

Two hundred and fifty years ago a peddler selling books gave a pamphlet to one who was supposed to be an ordinary young man, but he was Richard Baxter, and under the influence of that pamphlet he wrote "The Saints' Everlasting Rest." This fell into the hands of Philip Doddridge, and he wrote "The Rise and Progress of Religion in the Soul." This book fell into the hands of Wilberforce, and he wrote "A Practical View of Christianity." This book came to Leigh Richmond, and under the power of it he was led to write "The Dairyman's Daughter." This in turn fell into the hands of Thomas Chalmers, the mightiest Scotch preacher of his day, and after he became a minister it was the means of his conversion and of his mighty spiritual transformation. A peddler on the one side and Thomas Chalmers on the other—what a marvelous story!—Christian Herald.

Shad and Cod.

Shad are distributed along the entire east coast of the United States and northward and eastward to the gulf of St. Lawrence. Shad abound in nearly every river of the Atlantic coast. Its migrations from the sea are in quite a regular succession of time from relation to latitude. It first appears in the St. Johns river, Florida, about Nov. 15; in Georgia and South Carolina rivers in January, in the Potomac in February. In the Delaware the maximum run is about May 1, in Maine rivers about a month later, etc.

Cod are widely distributed in the north Atlantic ocean. To the north they range far beyond the arctic circle and to the south as far as Cape Hatteras, although they are not common south of New Jersey. The cod in the Pacific ocean is found from Bering sea south to Oregon. The largest cod are found along the Massachusetts coast and from that north.—Philadelphia Press.

"Let Her Go, Gallagher!"

Judge Beaver of Morgan county, Ky., had a trotting mare of which he was very proud. The animal was always driven at the race meets by a man named Gallacher, who was at that time city marshal of Harrodsburg. On one occasion the judge entered his mare at a trotting meeting in Tipton county. Some sports there knowing of the judge's pride in the animal, thought they would lower his colors for once, so they entered against her a noted fast trotter. At the end of the first mile the two trotters passed under the wire neck and neck at a 2:40 pace, and the judge grew wildly excited. "Let her go, Gallagher! Let her go!" he shouted. And Gallagher, hearing, loosened the lines. The mare plunged responded and finished more than a dozen lengths ahead amid the wild cheering of the crowd.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Racing in Mongolia.

Horse racing is taken seriously in Mongolia, where it is carried on under the auspices of the Buddhist priests. The races are rarely less than ten miles long, and the chief event of the Mongolian racing year is a contest over thirty miles of rough steppe. When C. W. Campbell visited Mongolia he attended a race meeting, at which most of the competing horses were owned by lamas.

"The great races which take place yearly at Urga," he writes, "are held under the direct patronage of the lama pope of Mongolia, who becomes the owner of all the winners. A horse race with a bishop in the judges' box, a public chiefly clerical, no bookmakers or betting and nominal prizes is a phenomenon in its way."
